

SOCIAL NETWORK SURFING

Abstract

Disclosed is a method for allowing the sharing of social relationships collections including the step of creating a social relationship collection object for a first user that provides access to at least one individual with whom they have a social relationship and allowing a second user to retrieve the social relationship collection object. As a result of allowing said second user to retrieve the social relationship collection object, the second user inspects a reference contained in the first user's social relationship collection object.